

The Magna Carta barons #2

King John's willingness to ignore custom and abuse his rights eventually led many of his baronial victims to rebel against him.

Robert Fitzwalter (c. 1130-1198) was the leading figure in the rebellion against King John. He was a knight and a member of the House of Fitzwalter. He was the son of Robert Fitzwalter, a knight and a member of the House of Fitzwalter. He was the son of Robert Fitzwalter, a knight and a member of the House of Fitzwalter. He was the son of Robert Fitzwalter, a knight and a member of the House of Fitzwalter.

William de Longchamp (c. 1150-1213) was the chief of the barons who rebelled against King John. He was a knight and a member of the House of Longchamp. He was the son of William de Longchamp, a knight and a member of the House of Longchamp. He was the son of William de Longchamp, a knight and a member of the House of Longchamp.

Richard de Clare (c. 1130-1198) was the son of Richard de Clare, a knight and a member of the House of Clare. He was the son of Richard de Clare, a knight and a member of the House of Clare. He was the son of Richard de Clare, a knight and a member of the House of Clare.

William de Warenne (c. 1100-1173) was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne.

Robert Fitzroy (c. 1130-1198) was the son of Robert Fitzroy, a knight and a member of the House of Fitzroy. He was the son of Robert Fitzroy, a knight and a member of the House of Fitzroy. He was the son of Robert Fitzroy, a knight and a member of the House of Fitzroy.

William de Warenne (c. 1100-1173) was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne.

William de Warenne (c. 1100-1173) was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne.

William de Warenne (c. 1100-1173) was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne.

William de Warenne (c. 1100-1173) was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne.

William de Warenne (c. 1100-1173) was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne. He was the son of William de Warenne, a knight and a member of the House of Warenne.

Illustrations by Peter Chriss for Bury St Edmunds Magna Carta 800. These illustrations were funded by a grant from Bury St Edmunds Town Council

www.burymagnacarta.org

 Bury Magna Carta 800  @BuryMC800

Magna Carta is owned and loaned by Lincoln Cathedral.

Bury St Edmunds Magna Carta 800 Partnership

Supported by  